

HOW THE JOURNAL CORRESPONDENT RESCUED EVANGELINA CISNEROS FROM RECOJIDAS.

The Manner of the Daring Escape by Means of a Frail Ladder from Jail to Housetop.

GOVERNORS APPLAUD.

JOURNAL EFFORT FULLY COMMENDED.

The Governor of Indiana Says That It Should Challenge the Commendation of All Intelligent Men.

Editor of the New York Journal:

If it be true, as I am informed it is, that Miss Evangelina Cisneros was a political prisoner, arrested and confined on mere suspicion of giving aid and comfort to the Cuban insurgents, certainly any effort invoked in her aid deserves the highest commendation. Perhaps it is not expressing the sentiment in language too strong to say that the genius of our twentieth century civilization is absolutely opposed to the incarceration of women within prison walls for mere political or supposed political offences. They are noncombatants in the broadest sense of the term, and though giving aid to the enemies of established government, the act usually results from that generous sympathy which is peculiarly characteristic of woman, and ought to be considered with comprehensive charity because of the source from which it springs. Having fallen under the displeasure of those who fall, or refuse to acknowledge, the obligations to respect which this sentiment imposes upon men, it seems to me that any effort invoked to give liberty to a woman situated as was Miss Cisneros should challenge the commendation of intelligent men to the same extent that her incarceration for opinion's sake should excite their indignation.

SANCTIONS THE LIBERATION OF PATRIOTS.

Vigorous Ex-Governor of Missouri Fully Indorses the Course of the Journal in the Cisneros Case.

Editor of the New York Journal:

I fully indorse the course of the Journal regarding the organized plans and effected rescue of Evangelina Cisneros. Whatever is necessary to liberate a patriot in Cuba I sanction, especially virtuous women, from the clutches of Weyler and his gang of hirelings and libertines. The blood of the murdered Americans in Cuba appeals to the living ones for a free Cuba. May it soon come, be the prayer of a brother of one of them.

THOMAS T. CRITTENDEN.

HER LIBERATION WAS PLAINLY JUSTIFIABLE.

Such is the View Taken by the Governor of Montana After Taking Into Consideration the Fate That Awaited the Girl.

Editor of the New York Journal:

Considering the cause for imprisonment and the fate that ultimately awaited Evangelina Cisneros, I believe that her liberation in most any manner was justifiable.

ROBERT B. SMITH.

INVOLVES INTERNATIONAL COMPLICATIONS.

For That Reason the Governor of Rhode Island Does Not Express an Opinion, but He Would Have Signed a Petition.

Editor of the New York Journal:

I don't think it quite proper for the Executive of a State to express himself on a question which might involve international complications. I would gladly have signed a petition for the release of Senorita Evangelina Cisneros.

ELISHA DYER,

Governor of Rhode Island.

OLD LOVE OF LIBERTY STILL EXISTS.

"Resistance to Tyrants Is Obedience to God," Quotes the Patriotic Governor of the State of Washington.

Editor of the New York Journal:

I am gratified to know that some of the old love of liberty, backed by American courage, still exists. "Resistance to tyrants is obedience to God."

JOHN ROGERS.

IT WAS A HUMANE AND PATRIOTIC ACT.

That Is the Unqualified and Freely Expressed Opinion of the Patriotic Governor of Oregon.

Editor of the Journal:

I think your people performed a humane and patriotic act in securing the liberation of Evangelina Cisneros.

WILLIAM P. LORD.

Bravery Commands Admiration.

Editor of the New York Journal:

The feat of the Journal in effecting the rescue of Rignorta Cisneros from a Spanish prison challenges the admiration of the world. Some exceedingly conservative people may say the new journalism is mixing in matters with which it has no legitimate concern; but not so. In my opinion, the journalism of the present, with its matchless energy and resources, should improve every opportunity to assert itself in defence of right, humanity and justice, in extending our knowledge of the world and in promoting the interests of the race. Admit that this great feat was planned and achieved for the purpose of securing a sensation. Is not a sensational achievement in a good cause infinitely better than a conversation that sits on its haunches while wrong and injustice trample upon the weak? Right thinking people will never complain of the sensationalism of modern journalism if it is such sensationalism as this. The bravery that risked life and all in an effort to free a wronged girl commands admiration, and I for one am proud that it was a newspaper man and another man who did it. I believe newspaper men should go to the front in the world's activities. Whenever there are difficult feats worth doing to be performed, set a newspaper man at them and they will be done. My congratulations to the Editor of the Journal and his daring representative in Havana.

WALTER WELLMAN,

Chicago Times-Herald.

Will Go Down in History.

Editor of the New York Journal:

Charles Duval is a veritable knight errant, his achievement is heroic and will be recorded in history. The undertaking involved great personal risk and required dauntless courage. Lovers of humanity whose hearts have been touched by the terrible story of Senorita Cisneros's treatment will applaud the Journal's enterprise. Even the critics of the new school of journalism will admit that the end in this case justified the means and that the Journal has gallantly earned all the praise it is receiving.

SCOTT C. BONE, Washington Post.

Something Unprecedented.

Editor of the New York Journal:

As a piece of daring and newspaper enterprise the aid given Miss Cisneros to escape from the Spanish prison is unprecedented. As an exhibition of nerve nothing like it has ever happened in the annals of newspaper work.

J. H. MATHEWS, Chicago News.

In front of the big door of Recojidas, Sigua lane turns at right angles and becomes O'Farrill street. No. 1 O'Farrill street, at the corner, was rented by the Journal correspondent, and from thence the rescue was planned. The escape was made from a window in the second story of the Recojidas, opening on an azotea or flat roof, over lower rooms in the front of the jail. Directly opposite No. 1 O'Farrill street the guard wall of the Recojidas rose so that the ladder could not be extended at right angles from the roof. To avoid the guard wall and to reach the azotea the ladder was run diagonally. Then, once on the flat roof, or azotea, the rescuers walked to the window revealed by Miss Cisneros in her letter.

CARLISLE WOULD GIVE HER UP.

Spain, He Declares, Can Demand Miss Cisneros's Return.

WE ARE BOUND IN HONOR TO COMPLY.

Still, He Believes, International Complications May Be Avoided.

By John G. Carlisle.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—

The case is one that I have watched with considerable interest, especially since I have seen General Lee, who talked to me freely in regard to the young Cuban. I have also seen others recently from Cuba, and all conform to the same opinion with regard to the imprisonment and efforts made to liberate Miss Cisneros.

Her rescue by the representative of the Journal takes on a graver aspect than the majority of people would imagine. The case as it now stands presents international complications. One of the papers to-day asserted that, disguised in man's clothing, Miss Cisneros has escaped to this country and is already in New Orleans. Another dispatch claims that, dressed as a man, Miss Cisneros has, after escaping from prison, gone into the country near Havana, where her identity is kept quiet by friends.

If the former of these statements is true the case, as I asserted, now presents decidedly interesting complications. Should Spain see fit to demand from this country the return of her prisoner of war, liberated without authority by an American citizen, we must in honor comply with such demand.

While there is no actual law that would compel this, yet if the United States intends to preserve her standing among nations a demand of this nature from Spain would have to be complied with and the prisoner delivered up. Again, another complication between the United States and Spain might result from the fact that an American citizen, in violation of the laws, has openly effected the escape of a prisoner of the latter country. Spain can make this a source of considerable trouble if she is inclined to do so.

My impression is, however, from all I have read and heard of the case, that Spain will take no such stand and that, in fact, she will be only too glad to have Miss Cisneros quietly removed and thus do away with further trouble on this score. As it was it began to look as though she might prove a very serious obstacle to any immediate or amicable adjustment of affairs between the two countries.

To refuse to deliver the prisoner of war upon the demand of Spain would be to violate the custom between nations. This the United States could not do without suffering materially in consequence.

HUGER'S HISTORIC ATTEMPT SECOND TO DUVAL'S.

The Woodlands, Amelia Court House, Va., Oct. 10.—The great exploit of the Journal in releasing Senorita Cisneros from prison in Havana, as detailed in Charles Duval's special from Havana, is the most chivalric exploit of modern journalism. It will ring round the world. Frank Huger's unsuccessful attempt to release Lafayette from Olmutz was not equal to it in chivalric sentiment and did not surpass it in daring. Senorita Cisneros is of the family of the Marquis Di San Lucia, late President of the Republic of Cuba, and the title is an old one in Spain, antedating by many centuries the discovery of America. They are good people, high minded, brave and patriotic, and in assisting them the Journal adds but another claim to the gratitude of the best classes of Cuban people.

Duval should have gone to Key West by Saturday's steamer. His special was at once wired back to Havana, and his life would not be worth five minutes' purchase after his exploit is known to the Spanish authorities.

This may be the spark that will fire the explosion in Havana against all Americans which is to occur some time or other. It is smoldering there now, and has been there a year or more. In the name of American manhood I thank the Journal and its great proprietor for this grand achievement of helping the helpless and of befriending the friendless and of protecting a woman, and I extend to Mr. Duval my hearty congratulations on the grand opportunity, and for the audacity, the courage and the nerve with which he improved it.

BRADLEY T. JOHNSON.

REVIVES MEDIAEVAL KNIGHT ERRANDRY.

Senator Money Says the Journal Has Given Cuban Sympathizers a Delightful Surprise.

Editor of the New York Journal:

I beg to tender my congratulations on the rescue of Miss Cisneros from a Spanish jail by the intrepid agents of the Journal. The achievement is not only extraordinary, but unique in the annals of journalism. It revives mediaeval knight errantry, humanity, liberality, daring and skill, united to relieve distressed virtue and patriotism. The Journal has given a delightful surprise to Cuban sympathizers and the enemies of oppression everywhere.

ORIGINALITY IN AN ACT OF HUMANITY.

Senator Jones, of Arkansas, Says Humane People Everywhere Will Thank the Journal for the Rescue.

Editor of the New York Journal:

It is very gratifying to see any one rescued from a Spanish prison, and particularly a woman. Those who risked their lives to accomplish the liberation of Miss Cisneros, and the Journal, which prompted the rescue, are entitled to the thanks of humane people everywhere. The Journal is to be congratulated on its originality, enterprise and success in this act of humanity.

JAMES K. JONES,

United States Senator from Arkansas.

SINCERE DEVOTION TO HUMAN LIBERTY.

United States Senator Turner So Characterizes the Rescue and Says It Was Fully Justified by Circumstances.

Editor of the New York Journal:

The rescue of Miss Cisneros from the foul Spanish prison by the Journal is not only an evidence of very great enterprise, but an evidence of sincere devotion of the newspapers to the cause of human liberty, which is exceedingly commendable. While the act of liberation may have been a violation of the municipal law of Spain, which would not be proper under ordinary circumstances, yet the arrest and imprisonment of Miss Cisneros was so harsh, arbitrary and unjust, and accompanied with such circumstances of cruelty and severity, that the Journal's act is fully justified in the eyes of humanity.

GEORGE F. TURNER,

United States Senator from Washington.

NEWS GATHERER SAYS "WELL DONE!"

Melville E. Stone, Head of the Associated Press, Says It Is Within the Province of a Newspaper to Make News as Well as to Print It.

Editor of the New York Journal:

I must commend and congratulate the Journal upon its successful action in behalf of the Cisneros girl. I am a strong believer in that kind of journalism. I hold that a newspaper should make news, not merely report and chronicle passing events. It is within the legitimate province of a modern newspaper to do things as well as to tell of others doing them. The release of Miss Cisneros is a magnificent accomplishment of a magnificent task. The Journal is worthy of unstinted praise both for its enterprise and its philanthropy.

M. E. STONE,

General Manager Associated Press.

Outranks the Deeds of Heroes.

Editor of the New York Journal:

Considered solely as an exploit or adventure, the rescue of Miss Cisneros by the Journal's hero, Charles Duval, will take rank as one of the most daring deeds of the past decade. It is really but little short of marvellous. It outranks the deeds of the heroes of the yellow-back novels; it out-heros Herod.

BERIAH WILKINS,

Editor and Proprietor The Washington Post.

Now for Andree.

Editor of the New York Journal:

I have nothing to say in regard to the newspaper enterprise which relieved Miss Cisneros. I am not, however, surprised at her release by Charles Duval. To have sympathized with her, and to have entered without thought of danger into the task of releasing her, is just like him. There is no man in our business, within my knowledge, who would more coolly, or desperately, in fact, have gone into such a dangerous undertaking than Duval. If the Journal were to first enlist his aid and then furnish the cash, he would treat Andree as a life.

WILLIAM G. STRETT,

Correspondent Galveston-Dallas News.

Spirit of Advanced Journalism.

Editor of the New York Journal:

The Journal, in accomplishing the escape of Senorita Cisneros, necessarily excited in the breast of liberty-loving Americans a feeling of admiration. It was a work of humanity such as could not have been accomplished unless undertaken in the spirit of advanced journalism. When ordinary diplomacy and philanthropy fail, the newspaper spirit, which is that of doing, not standing on the order of doing, is what must be relied on.

JOHN P. MILLER,

Triumph Over Red Tape.

Editor of the New York Journal:

The rescue of Evangelina Cisneros by a representative of the Journal is a great feat. It is a triumph over the red tape which impedes the promotion for our modern diplomacy. It is an accomplishment which will be referred to with pride by every American newspaper worker, and it will give those persons who have been denouncing what they are pleased to term "yellow journalism" something to think of.

H. L. MERRICK,

Washington Post.

Expected It of Duval.

Editor of the New York Journal:

The release of Miss Cisneros by the New York Journal is a triumph for the new journalism which even those who do not like that school must heartily commend and admire. Newspapers of the older school have been applauded for enterprising efforts in behalf of science and intellectual development. The Journal's most practical endeavors to relieve suffering humanity are no less commendable because the methods employed are unusual and sensational. I have the greatest admiration for the courageous journalist who achieved this triumph. As I know him well, I am not surprised at his success.

Interesting Brand of Enterprise.

Editor of the New York Journal:

I am glad to know that Senorita Cisneros has been delivered from the hands of Weyler and his enthralled, and especially glad to know that it was my friend Duval who accomplished that difficult feat. The New York Journal has shown an interesting brand of enterprise in securing the girl's release, and has thereby done much for the cause of humanity. From this standpoint the end unquestionably justified the means.

C. A. HAMILTON, Brooklyn Times.

Cupid breaks his bow at the sight of a face full of pimples and blotches. Hollow cheeks, sunken eyes, and a sallow complexion will defy his best intentions. Beauty is more than skin deep. The skin is merely the surface on which is written in plain characters the condition of the body. The skin is not a thing by itself, and skin diseases are frequently not skin diseases at all. The lotions and bleaches and creams and powders in the world won't make a good complexion if the digestion is wrong. If the stomach is sour, and the liver torpid, and the bowels constipated, the skin will show it. No use trying to treat the skin for such a condition. The only way to relieve it is to cleanse the system and purify the blood. As long as the heart is pumping impurities to every part of the body, just so long these impurities will show through the skin.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is good for the complexion because it makes the whole body healthy—because it cleans and purifies the blood, makes the digestion strong and clears out impurities of all kinds. By increasing the ability to assimilate nutritious food, and by the infusion of its own ingredients, it enriches the blood and so makes solid, healthy flesh. It fills out the hollows, rubs out wrinkles, and substitutes for sallowness a rosy, healthy glow. There is no mystery about it. It isn't a miracle. It is merely the result of a combination of rational, natural common sense with expert medical knowledge. It cures diseases of the lungs, liver, stomach, bowels, skin and scalp, simply because all these diseases spring from the same cause—a disordered digestion and consequent impure blood. Don't let prejudice and scepticism cheat you out of your health. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will positively cure you, if suffering from diseases named above.
